LIFE STINGS

Poignant, often witty and exceedingly cinematic, JELLYFISH tells the story of three very different Tel Aviv women whose intersecting stories weave an unlikely portrait of modern Israeli life. Batya, a catering waitress, takes in a child apparently abandoned at a local beach. Batya is one of the servers at the wedding reception of Keren, a bride who breaks her leg escaping a locked toilet stall, ruining her chance at a dream Caribbean honeymoon. And attending the event with an employer is Joy, a non Hebrew-speaking domestic worker guilt-ridden for having left her son behind in her native Philippines.

As this distaff trio separately wends their way through Israel's most cosmopolitan city, they struggle with issues of communication, affection and destiny—but at times find uneasy refuge in its tranquil seas.

About Etgar Keret and Shira Geffen

Partners in life and in their work, Etgar Keret and Shira Geffen are maverick spirits of the Israeli artistic scene. Shira Geffen is an acclaimed writer of children's books and stageplays making her filmmaking debut with Jellyfish. Etgar Keret is internationally known as a writer of uniquely imaginative, offbeat short stories. His books, which are bestsellers in Israel, have been published in 22 languages. The Nimrod Flipout was chosen by the L.A. Times and the Boston Phoenix as one of the best books of 2006, and in 2007 his collection Missing Kissinger was shortlisted for "the world's richest short story award", the Frank O'Connor prize. Over 40 short films have been based on his stories, as was the recent American independent feature film Wristcutters: A Love Story. His newest collection The Girl on the Fridge will be published in the U.S. in April, 2008.

"MOVING...ASTUTE..."

Deservedly won the Critics' Week prize at Cannes."
